

Philips Lighting and Buy American Compliance

Did you know that the 1933 Buy American Act and the 2009 American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) contain provisions (“Buy American Provisions”) which restrict where goods or supplies for public use or purchased with public funding can be made? Philips Lighting is experienced with these provisions, can help you understand how these provisions impact your purchasing decisions, and, with our extensive United States manufacturing operations, can provide a wide range of products that are fully-compliant with these provisions.

Philips Lighting in the United States

Philips Lighting is the largest lighting company in North America and the only one spanning the spectrum from design to manufacturing of lighting fixtures, lamps, and controls. Philips proudly employs over 26,000 people throughout the United States, including approximately 7,400 employees in 20 manufacturing facilities focused on lighting. For over a century, Philips Lighting has been the foremost innovator and provider of lighting technologies, enabling new and more efficient uses of light that can transform our world both aesthetically and practically.

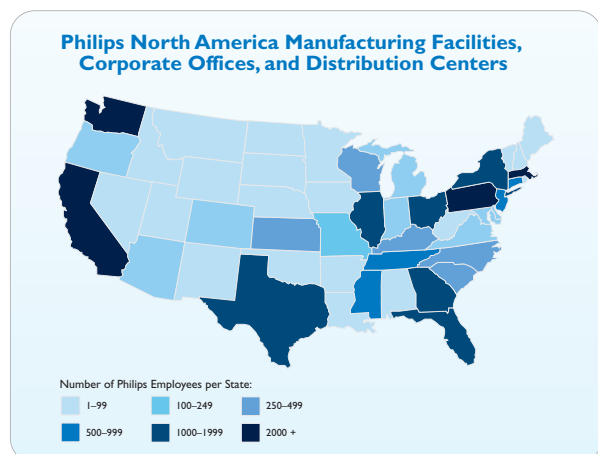

Philips Lighting and the Buy American Provisions

Most of our products that are sold in the United States are made or assembled in facilities located in the United States and therefore they can comply with the requirements of the Buy American Provisions. These products cover a wide range of indoor, outdoor, office, industrial, commercial, safety, specialized application and lighting controls solutions that can meet the many lighting challenges facing architects, engineers, contractors and designers today.

The Compliance Tools You Need

Philips Lighting is able to offer our customers the security of knowing that all Philips Lighting products identified as “Buy American Compliant” have gone through an in-depth verification process. We provide contractors and project managers with the information and resources to fulfill the complex specifications necessary for government-funded projects. Our dedicated and knowledgeable lighting team provides total customer support at every level of the design, purchase, and installation process in order to save time and worry for you, our customer.
